

Rights Respecting Schools

Rights and Responsibilities are very important.

There are 42 different children's rights and they are for children all around the world.

Responsibilities are things that people should do so that they treat each other properly.

For example, including others in your games, saying 'no' to bullying, caring for the environment and listening to teachers, friends and family.

We have had assemblies and circle times about rights and responsibilities.

The school council have answered questions about their ideas including if they think teachers respect children at school.

They also asked each class if they liked what they were learning in the classrooms.

Year two have made promises about their own rights and responsibilities.

Everyone has been spreading rights around the school.
