

Website Recommendations for E-Safety

Below is a list of website links that we would recommend looking at so that you can support your child(ren) and whole family whilst online. It is especially important at the moment as they may be using technology more often whilst at home in these difficult times.

Internet matters <https://www.internetmatters.org/>

This website has a range of resources including a story that is suitable for children aged 3-7 years. Digiduck is a story app that teaches young children how to stay safe online. There is also a range of parent resource packs which can be downloaded. A section named 'Advice by age' outlines what you might expect children to be doing on the internet and how best to support them. Please also look at the 'Five top tips to manage children's screen time' guide on our school website referred to as 'Managing Screen Time'.

Net-aware (O2 & NSPCC) <https://www.net-aware.org.uk/>

Net-aware is heavily focused on apps, games and social networking. This website is particularly useful in knowing the age restrictions for different apps and how to keep your child(ren) safe when using different apps.

Parent info <https://parentinfo.org/>

This link is tailored to supporting families in our ever-growing digital world. There are various articles and advice on the website and there is also a range of Health & wellbeing articles which may be of interest to read.

Thinkuknow <https://www.thinkuknow.co.uk/>

This is a great website and one that we always use in school with the children. There is a range of videos for different age ranges and they learn about staying safe and vigilant whilst watching them. Thinkuknow are updating their website at the moment (once a fortnight, on Tuesdays) with home learning activities tailored to each age range with simple 15minute activities to complete. You can find the home learning tasks by clicking 'Parent/Carer' on the homepage and scrolling down.

UK Safer Internet Centre <https://www.saferinternet.org.uk/>

This website has a range of articles, blogs and safe website link ideas. It also has e-books such as Smartie the Penguin. This story teaches children how to be kind when online and to think about asking for help if they are unsure about something. There are also various tips, guides and resources to help keep your child(ren) safe when online.
